LA FOLLETTE PLANS LENGTHY PLATFORM OF REFORM PLANKS

Some Radical Measures Will Be Contained in Senator's Program Including Constitutional Amendments.

Madison, Wis., June 10.—The "La Follette leaders are now getting down to real work on the platform they will submit to the Chicago convention. When the steering committee meets here the latter part of this week there will be a number of hours for discussion, and the number of planks already drafted indicates a platform so long that much of the planks will have to be discarded. It is now being decided that La Follette's platform will demand the enforcement of the law and a requirement of public and private honesty which shall recognize that hoodlums are traitors, that embezzlement is theft, that speculation is gambling, that tax dodging is larceny, that factory labor of children is slavery, and that deleterious adulteration is murder."

PRESIDENT OF PRESSMEN MUST FACE GRAVE CHARGES.

St. Louis, Mo., June 10.—What promises to be the most momentous convention in the history of the International Printing Pressmen's Union is to be held here this week at the national home and headquarters of the organization. The recent strike of the pressmen employed by the newspapers in Chicago and several other cities is said to have caused considerable dissatisfaction among the membership with the present heads of the union. Criticism is aimed particularly at President George L. Berry, and it is reported in some quarters that an attempt will be made in the convention to oust him from office. Friends of President Berry, however, declare that the reports of dissatisfaction are greatly exaggerated and that there is little probability of any attempt to depose him from his position at the head of the union.

VETERAN CONVICT SEEKS A RELEASE

John Warren, Oldest Convict in Point of Service in United States Fights for Liberty.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Hartford, Conn., June 10.—Among the half-hundred petitions laid before the Connecticut board of pardons for consideration and action today was an application for the pardon of John Warren, who is serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary at Waterbury. Warren has the unenviable distinction of being the oldest convict in the United States in point of service. He had just attained his majority when he was received at the penitentiary to begin a life sentence for the murder of his young wife. Today he is an old man of seventy-four, with a record of fifty-three years spent behind prison walls. The state board of pardons is familiar with every detail of Warren's case. Seven times has the board considered a petition for the old man's release and seven times has the petition been turned down. Whether the eighth petition will meet with a similar fate will soon be known. Warren has been a model convict and it is safe to say that there is not an official inmate of the state prison who would not be glad to learn that the old man would be released to spend his last years in freedom.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

by DAN MCCARTY

So many people have written to President Herriman of the Cincinnati Reds, making suggestions as to the best way of strengthening the pitching staff of that organization that he is about ready to take to the tall timber until he can cool down a little and collect his thoughts.

"We have about fifteen scouts out doing the gumshoe act," declared Mr. Herriman recently, "and I do not see how any good player that is for sale can escape our men who are looking for players." The trouble with most of the clubs having pitchers for sale is that they want enough money to buy a whole league for a single player.

More balks have been called on the American league pitchers up to date this season than all last year. The balk plays is the result of a campaign by President Dan Johnson for more base running. He thinks the fans want more of it and that at the beginning of the season that the balk rule was to be enforced to the letter.

league outfielder was passed over for outfielder Patrick Mulaney of Brockton, by the New York Americans. The price is said to be close to $10,000 plus outfielder Kauff of the Highlanders.

The latest project of Thomas Fleming Day, editor of the Builder and most venturesome of yachtsmen, is to attempt a voyage across the Atlantic from New York or Boston in a thirty-five-foot motorboat the last of June. Queenstown, Ireland, is the port of destination. Day has pulled off some daring stunts before, but this is the latest.

We Americans don't appreciate the greatness of our athletes who are going to contest in the Olympic games. For instance, consider our weight man, Jim Duncan throws the discus 145 feet, 9 1/2 inches from a seven-foot circle and 156 feet, 1 inch from an eight-foot, two-inch circle. The best that England's champion, Henderson, can do is 124 feet, 3 1/2 inches. Piron (English) has thrown the javelin 137 feet, 2 1/2 inches, and Snedigar (English) 166 feet, 1 inch. Maxman, British champion, has made 134 feet, 8 1/2 inches in the hammer throw; our Matt McGrath, in the same event, has a record of 187 feet, 4 inches. Americans compare thus favorably with the English in all branches of athletics. No wonder foreigners are already conceding the Olympic meet to America.

CONTEST IN LEAGUE IS ON IN EARNEST

Parker Pen, Y. M. C. A., and Hanson Company Nines Win Saturday Games and Lead the League.

Victory to the Parker Pen, Y. M. C. A., and Hanson company nines in their games Saturday, placed the three teams in the lead for the honors of the Commercial League, each with a percentage of one thousand. The games Saturday indicated that the fight for supremacy would be a hot one and the standing of the teams now will be no indication of how the final result will be.

Parker Pen, 13; Machinery, 2.

In the first of the contests scheduled at the Park Association diamond Saturday afternoon, the Parker Pen team were easily the winners over the Machinery company nine by a 13 to 2 score. A slug fest in the third inning on the part of the Parker team, which a substantial lead of six runs which the shopmen were unable to equal. Hell and Berger were the heavy men at the stick for the penmen and contributed six of the ten runs. The Machinery team, however, could boast, which was hardly sufficient against the prowess of their rivals.

Y. M. C. A., 9; Gazette, 1.
One run in the first was all that the Gazette could do in the second game at the fair grounds, and the Y. M. C. A. boys trotted away with the game to the tune of 9 to 1. Green's twisters were at all times baffling to the hitters and they connected for only two safe hits in the entire nine innings. The "Y" players were also brilliant in their stick work and accumulated a total of nine hits.

Hanson, 6; Lewis, 4.
The first game at Athletic park resulted in a victory for the Hanson company team over the Lewis knitting aggregation by the score of 6 to 4. This was one of the hardest fought battles of the day and the knitters were determined to make the knitters makers earn their glory. Mulligan, for the Lewis nine, had a big supply of curving curves which he turned over the plate with a vengeance. Moreover the Lewis boys proved equally as strong at the bat as their opponents and are enrolled as one of the teams to be reckoned with by the winners before the season has passed.

C. & N. W., 8; Recorder, 5.
The final game at Athletic park between the Northwestern roundhouse nine and the Recorder team resulted in an 8 to 5 score in favor of the boys at the south yards. Costly errors at critical points were responsible for the printer's defeat and amounted to handing the game to the South Janesville players with five runs credited to the Recorder as a protest.

PIRATES SHUT OUT FAST HARMONY NINE

Cuggs Pitches Star Ball With Good Support and Sunday Game Goes to Pirates, 6 to 0.

Huggs pitching star ball for the Pirates in their game with the unbeaten Harmony team at Athletic park yesterday afternoon was one of the main factors in the victory of the Janesville boys by the score of 6 to 0. All the Pirate players went into the contest with a determination and pounded Brummond of the Harmony nine for a total of thirteen hits. Costly errors and an absolute inability to connect with Huggs' twisters surely spelled defeat for Harmony. Following is the box score:

COLLEGE NINE WON IN CLOSE CONTEST

Milton College Defeated Plattville Normal 3 to 2 Yesterday, Winning Out in Last of Ninth Inning.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Milton, June 10.—The Milton College baseball nine won an exciting and splendidly played game from the Plattville Normal nine here yesterday by a score of three to two, the winning run coming in the last half of the ninth inning. Both teams played a tight ball for five innings, then each made two runs and fought a neck to neck battle until the close.

Maxon for the collegians pitched shut-out ball until the sixth session, when a hit coupled with an error put two men on bases a hit to short should have forced out the runner nearest home but a wide throw to third got away from the third sacker and the bases were full with none out. The next batter hit to short and a low throw home allowed the first run to be registered by Plattville. A hit brought in another score and Crandall relieved Maxon. With the bases full and no outs Crandall pitched wonderfully heady ball striking out the side and preventing further scoring. Maxon also struck out the side in the fifth inning. In the second half of the sixth Milton came back with a determined spirit and soon had the score tied. Ford got to first on an error and right here Crandall showed his merit when he won his own game by knocking a terrible home run drive into deep left. In the last half of the ninth with the score tied at two—Al Bingham waited got a base on balls and promptly stole second; from there he scored on P. J. Crandall's short infield hit and the subsequent error of the first baseman in taking the throw from the catcher, and the best played game of the year was over. Both G. Crandall and Bingham were members of the Milton high school state champion nine three years ago. Milton College has made one of the best records this year of any of the Wisconsin colleges, tying Northwestern and Ripon, the other two claimants for honors.

CARDINALS LOSERS BY NARROW MARGIN

Detroit North Ends Have Lucky Break and Defeat Janesville Nine, 7 to 6—Athletics Lose.

Luck was with the North Ends in their game with the Janesville Cardinals at the Detroit diamond yesterday afternoon. The local boys did some fast work but they were ragged at times, failing to support their twister, Connel, who was the mainstay of the team. In a previous game the North Ends were easily defeated by the Cardinals and although yesterday's score was a close one the local boys feel sure they have the best material. The lineup was:

Wilson catch, Connel pitch, Jones short, Connors first, Cronin second, J. Ryan third, Kinsky, left field, H. Ryan center field, Kelly right field.
Athletics vs. Afton.

Except that blank cartridges will take the place of bullets, federal and state troops of the middle west, six thousand strong, will move through southern and western Wisconsin next month in maneuvers as closely simulating war as times of peace allow. Two forces, one comprising six troops and a squadron of United States cavalry and the other consisting of two regiments of regular infantry, a battery of regular artillery and one of regular cavalry, will oppose each other on the march, the final destination being Sparta. Moving towards each other each day, the troops will camp at nightfall wherever they happen to be, carrying their camp equipment on their backs, and otherwise acting under exact conditions of war.

During the maneuver season there will be troops from Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota and other states in the central division co-operating with the Wisconsin and federal troops at and near the Wisconsin military reservation at Camp Douglas and at the Sparta grounds. The Second and Third Infantry of the Wisconsin National Guard will be forced to maneuver from Camp Douglas to Sparta, and will be reinforced by the Third Infantry regiment. Six or eight troops of regular cavalry from the Sixth regiment at Fort Des Moines, and Infantry A of the Wisconsin National Guard will be opposed by a provisional regiment organized from three regiments of the regular army now congregating at Dubuque, Ia. Approximately two thousand infantry will in about a week, begin the march at Dubuque across the Mississippi river for Sparta, Ia. Indications are that Madison will be one point selected for camp, although conditions of "war" will govern such selections. Another detachment to cross the

This regiment of march is unknown. This regiment of two thousand men, organized according to the requirements of the new infantry drill regulations devised for war purposes, will be camped at Sparta and will be the opposing force in the Wisconsin maneuvers.

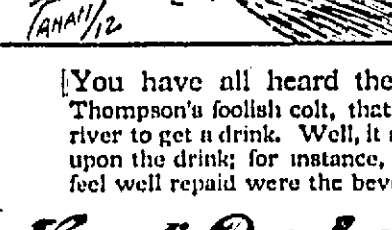

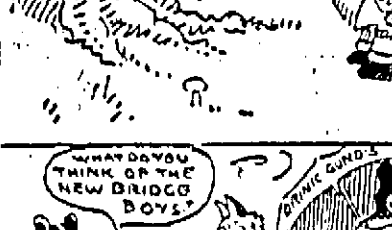

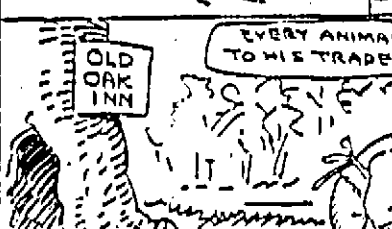

There will be competition in rifle practice, and field exercises in patrol, reconnaissance, advance and rear guard, outpost duty and guarding camp. Colonel Orlando Holway of the Third regiment, Wisconsin National guard, will command the forces starting from Camp Douglas. The First regiment of the Wisconsin troops, comprising companies from Milwaukee, Madison, Beloit, Neenah, Whitewater, Monroeville, Oconomowoc and Fort Atkinson, will go into camp at Camp Douglas with the Tenth separate battalion on July 15. The Second and Third regiments and Battery A, comprising companies from Eau Claire, La Crosse, Superior, Wausau, Marinette, Appleton, Fond du Lac, Sheboygan, Oshkosh and Manitowish, will go into camp at Camp Douglas on July 22. On leaving the camp all will enter the United States maneuver campaign, starting July 25.

WEATHER FORECAST.
Fair and warmer tonight and Tuesday; moderate southerly winds.

FIRST RULE—DON'T WORRY.

A banker who was chuckling to himself over some of James J. Hill's cheerful philosophy said: "I believe that the main reason why Mr. Hill at the age of 73 is able to work hours a day and more and maintain such a vigorous body and mind is because he has never worried. I have never seen him anxious. No matter whether it was the Northern Securities decision or the attempt of Harri-man to get the Northern Pacific, nothing seemed to make him worry. When I see that he is worrying over his business affairs, then I believe that the time for his withdrawal from the stage of active business is near."

The secret for good health, which Mr. Hill has discovered, is an open secret, and the "don't worry" tonic should be more generally adopted. The mind has so much to do with the body that many diseases are traced directly to its subtle influences.

You start out in the morning and meet half a dozen people, who console you by remarks about how bad you look, and suggestion about consulting a doctor right away, and by noon your stomach is all upset and you have no appetite for dinner.

Many people cultivate indigestion and develop dyspepsia, without the aid of outside influences. They have never studied anatomy and hardly know enough about the organs of the body to tell where they are located, yet they assume to be expert diagnosticians, and every ache or pain is the forerunner of some disease which they have seen described in some cure-all announcement.

Some years ago a specialist in St. Louis made a lot of money in treating catarrh. The list of symptoms covered the broad field of all the ailments to which humanity is heir, and the reader was impressed with the notion that he must have the disease in some form, or if not he commenced to cultivate it by worry and was usually successful.

People who live to a good old age are said to experience their second childhood, and this is sometimes the case. When the mind becomes a blank and ceases to annoy or influence the organs of the body the stomach is at rest. Digestion is as good as in the days of early life, and sleep as natural as in babyhood.

An old gentleman in this condition fell and fractured two or three ribs. He was bandaged and put to bed with instructions to keep him there for two weeks, but the next day he was up and about the place, and never lost a meal as the result of the accident. A younger man would have worried himself into all sorts of complications, and been laid up for a month.

The trouble with many of us is that we live too much within ourselves, and are so self-centered that the little things of life are magnified until every bolt promises to be a cancer, and every attack of indigestion an alarming symptom of heart failure.

A little more sympathy for other people's troubles and a little more effort to relieve suffering all about us, would cause the worries to be forgotten.

DISCOUNTING POLITICS.

Henry Clow, the New York banker, has this to say about politics and business:

"Financial conditions are positively changing for the better. A more confident undertone prevails both here and at the interior. This new wave of cheerfulness blows in from the West where unrest for a long time has been deep-seated. The banks for this change in tone is threefold. First, our industrial and financial leaders seem to have decided by common consent to cut loose from politics. It is felt that agitation has brought the worst to the surface, and that an estimate can be placed upon the worst that is likely to happen. It is felt also that the high tide of radicalism has been reached and that henceforth more rational and normal judgment is likely to prevail.

"There is also less uncertainty as to what candidates will be selected as standard-bearers for either party, although nothing definite has yet been made public regarding platforms. Of course, the political thermometer may fluctuate violently during the next few months, but in spite of such uncertainties the worst to be expected is already known, and the feeling is abroad that no extreme policies are likely to be adopted during the next administration."

He also finds the outlook for a bumper crop promising, and this is an important factor in national prosperity. Labor disturbances have in the main been settled without serious loss and the industrial world is at peace because well employed at living wage. With the June conventions out of the way, and congress adjourned, business will assume normal conditions in spite of the political campaign.

The garbage ordinance, passed by the council, is a move in the right direction. It settles a perplexing question for householders, and will have a wholesome effect on sanitary conditions. Some way should be devised to place the street sprinkling wagons under city supervision, in the interests of preserving the streets, or better still, have every street in the city cleaned. This is done in many of the smaller towns, and should be done in Janesville.

If it requires three hundred policemen to protect the republican national committee while in session, how much of a force will be demanded by the convention, when the contestants meet at short range? The republican party is certainly an exhibition. There may be some glory in the performance, for the men responsible, but it is humiliating to the rank and file, and a disgrace to the nation.

The republican national committee is handling the preliminary work of the Chicago convention in the interests of justice, and with full knowledge of the fact that many of the contest cases were manufactured for the occasion. Colonel Roosevelt appears to capture the republican party, as La Follette did in Wisconsin, a few years ago. Falling in this it remains to be seen what policy he will pursue. If he decides to bolt, many of his followers will desert him.

"Late" Young of the "Don Moline Capitol," has long been recognized as one of the staunch conservative leaders in Iowa, but his overwhelming defeat in the primary election, held last week, has caused Mr. Young to transfer his allegiance to the progressive wing of the party, and his paper is out with a strong editorial endorsing the candidacy of Senator Cummins for president, as a compromise candidate, and pledging support.

The colored brother from the South is just now having the time of his life in Chicago. He represents about all there is of the republican party in some of the states, and just now his vote is important. So he is living high at the expense of some campaign committee. The Roosevelt men are paying him marked attention.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By Roy K. Moulton

Front Porch Conversation.
They gather every pleasant night. When other people want to snooze, And then discuss with all their might The latest things in hats and shoes. They criticize the hobble gown That's being worn by Mrs. Jones, And gossip about Mrs. Brown, And her new hair in piercing tones. They talk of novels that they've read And tell of rumors of divorce. They dish up all their married friends. They couldn't leave out one, of course. They review all that has occurred Since last they met and judgment passed. And with horror all they've heard About the widows, and and grass. They tell what everyone has had For dinner every day that week. There's not a fashion or a fad Of which they don't forget to speak. They tell what happened long ago And what will happen ages hence. Until it sometimes seems as though They can talk everything but sense.

For a Safe and Sane Fourth.
While various municipal authorities are discussing the possibility of a safe and sane Fourth this year we have gone ahead and framed the following rough draft of a Fourth of July program which should suit the most timid and should be framed into an ordinance:

- 5 a. m.—Hanging of flags on front porches.
- 6 a. m.—Breakfast.
- 7 a. m.—Waving of small flags by the populace.
- 8 a. m.—Reading of the Declaration of Independence, each citizen reading it to himself audibly.
- 9 a. m.—Patriotic speech in deaf and dumb languages from steps of City Hall.
- 10 a. m.—Waving of flags.
- 11 a. m.—Rest until dinner.
- 12 m.—Dinner with red white and blue ice cream.
- 1 p. m.—Recreation with checker games and grand whist contest.

The Lady Fair.
R. Kipling said that the lady fair Was "a rag, a bone and a hunk of hair." But he wrote those lines some time ago.

And not of the lady fair we know, For it would be rather hard to say What makes up the lady fair today. A rag no longer would suit for taste. But a broadcloth skirt and a silk shirtwaist. The bone is no longer in evidence Because, for a matter of light expense She studies a treatise on "Why be Thin?" And bones are discreetly concealed within. Concerning her hair it is safe to bank That she carries more than a shingle bank. For this is a fact that is plain to see No matter how much a "hunk" may be. So we cannot describe our lady fair As "a rag, a bone and hunk of hair."

JUDGE GRIMM RULES THAT ASSESSMENTS MUST BE AFFIRMED

Decision of Court in Contested Assessment Cases Upholds Decisions of Board of Review of Re-assessment.

Judge George Grimm gave his decision today in the matter of the petition of Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy, M. G. Jeffris, W. S. and M. G. Jeffris and N. L. Carle for review of assessment of real estate, brought for writs of certiorari in the circuit court for Rock county and ruled that the figures as fixed by the board of review of the reassessment must stand.

"The contention of the plaintiffs in the action was that the assessment of their property was inequitable and that they have given evidence to show the same before the board of review, which without introducing any evidence in opposition, allowed the assessors' figures to stand. In regard to this the court says that the board may give such weight to the evidence introduced by the petitioner as in its judgment it is entitled to. Following is the court's decision in full:

"I have examined the record and carefully considered the evidence. In each of the above entitled cases and in each of the opinion that the assessment in each instance must be affirmed. It is possible that were I at liberty to determine from the evidence the marked value of the several parcels involved, I would have reached a conclusion more nearly in accord with the petitioner's contentions; but I am not. It is evident that in each instance the board gave such weight to the evidence presented in behalf of the petitioner as in its judgment it was entitled to; and even if we concede that the evidence propounded in favor of petitioner's contentions, it cannot be successfully denied that there is evidence in each case reasonably supporting the judgment of the board.

"Under the law the board is required to fix the assessment at the fair market value of the property. In determining the fair market value the board is not bound to rely upon opinions of men alone, even though such opinions be those of men generally familiar with real estate values in the community. They have also in connection therewith taken into consideration the cost and character of the improvements, location, rental value, and every other element which may be of aid in determining the fair market value. As a preliminary to that end, they may estimate the ground and the improvements separately, and in estimating the improvements they may estimate their value as attached to the soil and not what they would bring if severed. If the final result be reasonably supported by evidence or undenied evidence, the court is powerless to annul the judgment of the board.

"For the reasons thus briefly stated, I must affirm the assessments. Dated June 10th, 1912. GEORGE GRIMM, Circuit Court."

MAKE GOOD PROGRESS IN ELEVATING GRADE

Siding on East Bank of River Has Been Raised Three Feet at Approach to Racine Street Bridge.

Good progress is being made in the elevation of the sidewalk of the Chicago & Northwestern railway on the west bank of the river below the Janesville Machine company's factory. The track has been raised about three feet where it intersects the approach to the Racine street bridge, but has not been brought up so far north of that point. The teams hauling in waste dirt and gravel from street and sewer work are now regularly crossing the bridge. Sixteen men are at work and a team and scraper is constantly on hand distributing the material convenient for their handling. Most of the work has to be done in the morning as the afternoon switching can not be interfered with. About 1200 feet of track will have to be raised.

Wake Up With a "Dark Brown Taste?"

Get Rid of It! Run for OLIVE TABLETS

There isn't the slightest need to wake up any morning with a "brown mouth." Ugh! No need to describe it!
Dr. Edwards has made "brown mouth" a thing of the past in Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.
Anyone who takes Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets the moment he suspects his liver and bowels, never has a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a pimply face, constipation or any other form of bowel or liver disorder.

Take one just the moment you suspect you are constipated or that your liver is out of order.
Thousands take one at bedtime every night just to keep the bowels regular, the liver in order, the mouth clean and the breath pure and sweet.
Olive Tablets are made of pure vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

Dr. Edwards spent 17 years in practice and in laboratory experiments before he perfected Olive Tablets.
Why don't you try them instead of the severe-kind of laxatives that grip and only effect temporary relief?
"Every Little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

CHAPTER XXII.

Wherein Philip Ammon is Scorned by Edith Carr, and Hart Henderson Appears on the Scene.

EDITH CARR stood in a vine-enclosed side veranda of the Lake Shore clubhouse waiting while Philip Ammon gave some important orders. In a few days she would sail for Paris to select a wonderful trousseau she had planned for her marriage in October. Tonight Philip was giving a club dinner in her honor. As she stood waiting she smiled softly. She was robed in a French creation suggested and designed by Philip. He had said to her, "I know a competent judge who says the distinctive feature of June is her exquisite big night moth. I want you to be the very essence of June that night, as you will be the embodiment of love. Be a moth.
The most beautiful of them is either the pale green Luna or the yellow imperialis. Be my moon lady or my gold Empress."

Now she stood, tall, lithe, of grace inborn, her dark wavy hair high piled and crowned by gold bands studded with amethysts and at one side an enamelled lavender orchid rimmed with diamonds, which flashed and sparkled.
The soft yellow robe of lightest weight velvet fitted her form perfectly, while from one shoulder fell a great velvet wing lined with lavender and flecked with embroidery of that color in imitation of the moth. Philip had said that her gloves, fan and slippers must be lavender because the feet of the moth were that color. These necessaries had been made to order and embrodered with gold. In her heart she thought of herself as "Imperialis Regals," as the Yellow Empress. But in all the fragmentary thought crossing her brain the one that never came was that of Philip Ammon as the emperor, Philip the king of her heart, and at least her equal in all things.

"Ah, my luck!" cried a voice behind her.
Edith Carr turned and smiled exquili-tely.

"I thought you were on the ocean," she said.
"Only reached the dock," replied the man, "when I had a letter that recalled me by the first limited. Edith, you are the most superb woman in every respect that I have ever seen. One glance at you is worth the whole journey." He half closed his eyes and smilingly stared straight at her. He was taller than she, a lean man, with close cropped light hair, steel gray eyes, a square chin and "man of the world" written all over him.

Edith Carr flushed. "I thought you realized when you went away that you were to stop that Hart Henderson," she cried.
"I did, but this letter of which I tell you called me back to start it all over again. One of your most intimate chums wrote it. It contained the hazard that possibly I had given up too soon. It said that in a fit of petulance you had broken your engagement with Ammon twice this winter, and he had come back because he knew you did not really mean it. I have come back to haunt you until the ceremony is over. Then I go, not before. I was insane!"

The girl laughed merrily. "Not half so insane as you are now, Hart!" she cried gayly. "You know that Philip Ammon has been devoted to me all my life. Well, now I'll tell you something else, because this looks serious for you. I love him with all my heart.
Not while he lives shall he know it, and I will laugh at him if you tell him, but the fact remains. I intend to marry him, but no doubt I shall tease him constantly. It's good for a man to be uncertain. If you could see Ammon's face at the quarterly return of his ring you would understand the fun of it.
My little fits of temper don't count with Phil. He's been raised on them."
"Just the same I'll wait and see if an accomplished fact," said Hendenson. "And, Edith, because I love you with the sort of love it is worth a woman's while to inspire I want your happiness before my own. Go careful from now on. Don't strain that patched engagement of yours any further.

I've known Philip all my life. He loves you, yes! He is long suffering for you, yes! But men know he has a limit.
When the limit is reached he will stand fast, and all the powers can't move him. You don't seem to think it, but you can go too far."

"Is that all?" laughed Edith Carr anciently.
"No, there is one thing more," said Henderson. "Here or hereafter, now and so long as I breathe, I am your slave. If you need me it is not necessary to speak; only give me the faintest sign. All your life I will be somewhere near you waiting for it."

At that instant Philip Ammon entered. He was in full evening dress and exceptionally handsome. "Everything is ready," he said. "They are waiting for us to lead the march. It is formed."

Edith Carr smiled entrancingly. "Do you think I am ready?"

Philip looked what he thought and offered his arm. Edith Carr nodded carelessly to Henderson and moved away.
The last half of the program was well under way. Never had girl been more complimented and petted in the summer of time than Edith Carr. A partners' dance was called and the floor was filled with couples waiting for the music. Ammon stood whispering delightful things to Edith facing him. From out of the night, in at the wide front entrance to the pavilion there swept in slow, wavering flight a great yellow moth and fluttered toward the center cluster of glaring electric lights.

"Why, isn't that?"—she began excitedly.
"It's a yellow Emperor! This is fine!" cried Ammon. "The last one Illuma needs for her collection. I must have it! Excuse me!"

He ran toward the light. "Hart!
Henderson! Follow! Anything!" he cried. "Every one hold up something and stop that!"

"He wants it for Edith!" ran in a murmur around the hall. The girl's face flushed, while she bit her lip in vexation. Instantly every one began holding up something to keep the moth from flying back into the night. One fan held straight before it served, and the moth gently settled on it.

"Hold steady!" cried Ammon. "Don't move for your life!" He rushed toward the moth, made a quick sweep and held it up between his fingers.
"All right!" he called. "Thanks, every one! Excuse me a minute."

He ran to the office.
"An ounce of gasoline, quick!" he ordered. "A cigar box, a cork and the glue bottle."

He poured some glue into the bottom of the box, set the cork in it firmly, dashed the gasoline over the moth repeatedly, pinned it to the cork, poured the remainder of the liquid over it, closed the box and fastened it. Then he laid a bill on the counter.

"Pack that box with cork around it in one twice its size, tie securely and express to this address at once."
"Keep the change," called Ammon as he ran back to the pavilion.
Edith Carr stood where he left her, thinking rapidly. She heard the murmur that went up when Philip started to capture the exquisite golden creature she was impersonating. She saw the flash of surprise that went over unrestrained faces when he ran from the room without even showing it to her.

He had spoken of a country girl he had met who played the violin wonderfully, and at times he had showed a disposition to exalt her as a standard of womanhood. Miss Carr had ignored what he said and talked of something else. It was that girl who was collecting moths! No doubt she was the competent judge who was responsible for the yellow costume Philip had devised. Had Edith Carr been in her room she would have torn off the dress at the thought.

Being in a circle of her best friends, which to her meant her keenest rivals and hardest critics, she grew rigid with anger. Her breath hurt her pain-ing chest. No one thought to speak to the musicians, and, seeing the floor filled, they began the waltz.
Edith Carr grew very white as she stood alone. The dotted only daughter of the Carr family hoped that she would drop dead from mortification, but nothing happened. She was too perversely to step aside laughingly and say that she was waiting for Philip.
Then came Tom Lovering dancing with Polly Ammon. Being in the scenes with the Ammon family, Tom scouted trouble from afar, so he whispered to Polly, "Edith is standing in the middle of the floor, and she's awful mad about something."

They hurried to Edith.
"Come, dear," said Polly. "We are going to wait with you until Phil gets back. Let's go for a drink. I am so thirsty!"

"My betrothed left me here," Edith said. "If I shall remain until he returns for me, and then—he will be my betrothed no longer!"

Polly grasped Edith's arm.
"Oh, Edith!" she implored. "Don't make a scene here, and tonight. He can explain! It's only a breath since I saw him go out. I thought he had returned."

"He has been gone just long enough to show every one of his guests that he will leave me standing alone, like a neglected fool, for any passing whim of his. I explain! His explanation would sound well! Do you know for whom he caught that moth? It is being sent to a girl he flirted with all last summer."

Speech unloosed the fountain. She stripped off her gloves to free her hands. At that instant the dancers parted to admit Philip. Instinctively they stopped as they approached and with wondering faces waited in Edith and Philip, Polly and Tom.

"Mighty good of you to wait!" cried Ammon, his face beaming with delight over his success in capturing the yellow Emperor. "I thought when I heard the music you were going on."

"How did you think I was going on?" demanded Edith Carr in frigid tones.

"I thought you would step aside and wait a few seconds for me or dance with Henderson. It was most important to have that moth. It just completes a valuable collection for a person who needs the money. Come!"

He held out his arm.
"I step aside for no one!" stormed Edith Carr. "I await no other girl's pleasure! You may complete the collection with that!"

She drew her engagement ring from her finger and reached to place it in one of Philip's outstretched hands.
Ammon saw and drew back. Instantly Edith dropped the ring. As it fell, almost instinctively Philip caught it in air.

"Edith, for the love of mercy, wait until I can explain!" he begged. "Put on your ring and let me tell you how it is."

"Never! Your conduct is infamous!"
"Come to think of it," said Ammon deliberately, "it is infamous to cut a girl who has danced all her life out of a few measures of a waltz. As for asking forgiveness for so black a sin as picking up a moth and starting it to a friend who lives by collecting them I don't see how I could. I have not been gone three minutes by the clock, Edith. Put on your ring and finish the dance like a dear girl."

He thrust the glittering ruby into her fingers and again held out his arms.

"I accept your decision in the presence of these witnesses!"
She dropped the ring, and it rolled some distance from them. Henderson, following its shining course and caught it before it was lost.
"You really mean it?" demanded Ammon in a voice as cold as hers ever had been.
"You know I mean it!" cried Edith Carr.
"I accept your decision in the presence of these witnesses," said Philip Ammon.

"Where is my father?" he asked of those around them. The older Ammon, with a distressed face, hurried to him.
"Father, take my place," said Philip.
"Excuse me to my guests. Ask all my friends to forgive me. I am going out for a time."

He turned and walked from the pavillion. As he went Hart Henderson rushed to Edith Carr and forced the ring into her fingers. "Edith, quick!
Come, quick!" he implored. "There's just time to catch him. If you let him go this way he never will return in that world. Remember what I told you."

"Great prophet, aren't you, Hart?" she smiled. "Who wants him to return? If that ring is thrust upon me again I shall fling it into the lake. Signal the musicians to begin and take this dance with me."

Henderson put the ring into his pocket and began the dance. He could feel the muscular spasms of the girl in his arms, her face was cold and hard, but her breath burned with the sear of fever. She finished the dance and all others, taking Philip's numbers with Henderson, who had arrived too late to arrange a program. She left with the others, merely inclining her head as she passed Ammon's father taking her place, and entered the big touring car for which Henderson had telephoned.

She sank limply into a seat and manned softly.
"Shall I drive awhile in the night air?" asked Henderson.

She nodded. Henderson instructed the chauffeur.
She raised her head in a few seconds.
"Hart, I'm going to pieces," she said.
"Won't you put your arm around me a little while?"

Henderson gathered her into his arms and her head fell on his shoulder. "Closer!" she cried.

Dawn was streaking the east when he spoke to her.
"Edith, it is growing light."

"Take me home," she said.
Henderson helped her up the steps and rang the bell.

"Miss Carr is ill," he said to the footman. "Rouse her maid instantly and have her prepare something hot as quickly as possible."

Policy and Politics.
"Honestly," said Uncle Eben, "is do best policy, and I'm no' dan half ex-pectin' to see do day when it's also considered do bes' policy."—Washington Star.

Of the Prince of Conde.
Nothing was more inviolable to the prince than the rights of friendship.
When a favor was asked of him, it was he that appeared obliged; and never was his joy so natural or lively as when he conferred pleasure upon others.—Jacques Benigne Bossuet.

The Voyage of the Beagle.
Darwin was a member of the expedition undertaken for the scientific survey of the South American waters on the ship Beagle. The voyage was begun in 1831 and lasted almost five years. Much of Darwin's data for his works were gathered on this trip.
